Strong emotion after 'Jackass' death

As dozens of memorial pages were erected on Facebook to memorialize "Jackass" stuntman Ryan Dunn and friend Zachary Hartwell, emotions remained high surrounding the question of whether Dunn was drunk when his Porsche careened into woods off Route 322.

Court documents, meanwhile, show that Dunn had previously been arrested for driving while under the influence. He accepted a probationary program as part of a plea from the 2005 arrest.

And tempers flared yesterday morning after film critic Roger Ebert tweeted a snarky comment and was promptly attacked by mourners, including "Jackass" leader Bam Margera, who grew up in West Chester. Most egregious, perhaps, was the notorious Westboro Baptist Church, which announced plans to picket any public memorials or funeral for Dunn. The Kansas congregation is known for protesting military funerals.

"Ryan Dunn is in hell!" said a statement tweeted by congregant Taylor Drain. METRO/AW/BXM

Distracted driving plagues transit

That's the ruling from federal transportation panel after hearing on duck boat catastrophe ◐ Victims' attorney say phones should be banned

Shortly after a federal hearing concluded that distracted driving was the leading cause of last summer's catastrophe on the Delaware River when a Ride the Ducks boat was crushed, lawyers representing the family of two Hungarian students killed said that cell phones should be banned for operators of all types of vehicles.

Attorneys Robert Mongeluzzi and Peter Ronai held a press conference to respond to a final report issued yesterday by the National Transportation Safety Board.

"The only way that you are going to make sure that people do not use their cell phones, whether they are in the cockpit of an airplane or whether they are on a tug boat where they're responsible for someone else's safety, is lock 'em up," Mongeluzzi said.

During a final hearing in Washington, D.C., on the crash that involved a city-contracted tug boat and a disabled duck boat, NTSB Chairwoman Deborah Hersman described distracted driving as "the new DUI." She said safety officials have to change a culture where vehicle operators are constantly talking, texting and browsing the Internet on the phones.

The families of Dora Schwendtner, 16, and Szabolcs Prem, 20, are suing K-Sea Transportation, which was pulling the barge, the city of Philadelphia which owned the barge, and Ride the Ducks. There is no timeline for when the trial will begin.

Placing blame

The NTSB squarely leveled blame for the fatal Delaware River crash on the pilot of the K-Sea tug boat for driving while distracted and from a section of the tug that didn't provide proper visibility in front of the barge.

▶ "The investigation revealed that the mate was inattentive ... by his repeated use of a cell phone and lap top computer ... [and] rather than being in the upper wheel house as expected, the tugboat mate was navigating from its lower wheel house where visibility ... was limited."

City pays out $115K due to 'stop and frisk'

Mayor Michael Nutter signed an executive order that calls for independent monitoring of "stop and frisk" tactics by police and retraining all officers as part of a settlement.

"Stop and frisk" was a major part of Nutter's crime strategy when he was came into office. Last November, seven black men and one Latino man filed a complaint claiming police violated their Fourth and 14th Amendment rights by stopping them without probable cause or reasonable suspicion.

Under the consent decree, beginning in January, the police department will enter all stops into an electronic database, which will be audited quarterly, and will issue an annual report on the findings of the audits. JoAnne Epps, dean of Temple University's Beasley School of Law, will also analyze the reports as independent outside auditor.

METRO/SDL

Frisky fallout

The issue of "stop and frisk" has been contentious since it came up in the 2007 mayoral campaign.

- "Everybody must be treated with dignity and respect in this city, regardless of who you are, where you came from, what you look like, your gender or anything else," Nutter said announcing the settlement.
- Lead plaintiff Mahari Bailey, an African-American lawyer in the city, said he was satisfied with the settlement.
- As part of the settlement, the city will also pay $115,000 to seven plaintiffs. State Rep. Jewell Williams' complaint is being settled separately.

'Hoax mom' stole $700K from employer, relatives

▶ Sweeten

Bonnie Sweeten, nationally infamous for faking kidnap by black men, pleaded guilty to federal charges

Bonnie Sweeten, the "hoax mom" who perpetrated a racially tinged kidnapping hoax, pleaded guilty to wire fraud and aggravated identity theft in federal court yesterday.

With a green prison jumpsuit hanging from her frame, she spoke in a soft, at times quivering, voice. Her attorney Jim McHugh said after a 45-minute hearing that "she pleaded guilty to accept responsibility for her actions." A number of charges were dropped. Sweeten, who is currently taking medication for depression, faces up to 22 years in prison and weighty restitution, at her Sept. 21 sentencing.

Sweeten could be ordered to repay up to $1.035 million in restitution to her victims.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Denise Wolf described a convoluted fraud of the law firm where Sweeten worked, co-workers and relatives. She used the money for "entertainment, travel, shopping, food." The dropped charges don't significantly alter the possible sentence, Wolf said.

The kidnapping hoax came as the fraud was crumbling around her.

Investigators quickly realized the 40-year-old paralegal with three children had defrauded more than $700,000 from clients, her boss and relatives. That includes $290,000 from the retirement account of a 92-year-old man suffering from dementia by stealing and forging his signature on checks from his house.

She's already served 10 months in Bucks County on charges stemming from the kidnapping hoax.

Comedian Quinn brings act to Philly

Comedian Colin Quinn, "Saturday Night Live" cast alumnus, will be in Center City for two weeks starting next Wednesday performing his highly acclaimed show, "Long Story Short" as part of the Philadelphia Theater Company's 35th anniversary season.

As the subtitle, "History of the World in 75 Minutes," implies, Quinn offers his satiric view of how the world devolved from Alexander the Great to "Jersey Shore" princess Snooki.

He said in an interview "the point of the act is to illustrate that despite the technological advances, human nature hasn't evolved much. When you compare pictures of the St. Petersburg court during the 15th century with those of a Def Jam Records release party, there is very little difference."

Jerry Seinfeld is the show director. "Jerry worked for hours for no pay with me on the routine," Quinn said. "He probably lost money helping me."

Nerves frayed in Camden over suspicious blazes

Large federal task force talked about new investigation they have started in hopes of easing concerns

Camden's mayor, police chief, fire chief and county prosecutor joined with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives yesterday for a press conference called to soothe the tattered nerves of residents in the wake of three major fires in less than two weeks.

Matthew Horace, special agent in charge of the ATF's Newark, N.J., field office, said a 20-member national response team will focus on the vacant Concord Chemical Inc. factory fire Sunday. While all three fires are deemed suspicious, he said they wouldn't probe the others unless information turned up at the Concord site that links them.

Even if the other fires weren't potentially connected: "There are any number of situations where [the special team] would be called in," Horace said.

Investigators specializing in forensics, chemicals and electrical-engineering came from as far away as Wyoming within 36 hours.

"Right now, our priority is the latest fire," Horace said.

Mixed reviews for big fashion matchup

Could partnership hurt Versace? Some say yes Keep prices higher than normal H&M gear, one marketing strategist warns Others say collaboration is a win-win

Retail and branding experts have mixed thoughts on the partnership between luxe Versace and budget-friendly H&M.

"Versace has become so inaccessible in the past few years, especially while the economy tanked, even more so than other high-end brands," said Rachel Weingarten, a marketing strategist who teaches personal branding at New York University. "It's become a symbol of excess and perhaps unfairly, a symbol of the '80s. So I think the timing is excellent."

"They need to still be in the consumer's mind and maybe this will bridge that connection — it's accessible snob appeal," she continued.

She cautioned that Versace should keep its items a bit pricier than H&M usually charges.

"That will help make H&M become a destination," said Weingarten. "And limiting the number of pieces they actually sell would be a great move, too."

Jacqui Stafford, a fashion contributor on the "Today" show said the collaboration is a good way for young shoppers to become more familiar with the Versace name.

"It's a win-win," she said. "It's aspirational — shoppers will say, 'One day I'm going to get myself a real Versace jacket," now that they've had a taste of the brand."

But both companies need to tread carefully, warned Louis Marino, who previously worked as P. Diddy's creative director.

"If it's done incorrectly, it can look like Versace is pandering to the mass market in order to remain relevant," he said. "Versace has more to lose. H&M knows what it is."

"In the branding world it's always smarter to marry up rather than marry down," said branding expert Rob Frankel.

The scoop

H&M stores are going to be looking very flashy come midautumn. The affordable chain just signed on Donatella Versace to create the next installment of its designer collection. The line, which hits stores on Nov. 17, will include women's and men's clothing in addition to accessories for the home. And like many of the designer collaborations before it, this one will feature a lot of the brand's pricey trademarks for less.

Laga Gaga in Versace

- "The collection will be quintessential Versace, perfect for H&M and Versace fans everywhere," Donatella said in a statement.
- The announcement is the latest upswing for the Italian house, which has been in the press lately for its celebrity-heavy men's runway show and Lady Gaga moment — the diva recently said she will wear only the brand for the next few months. 2011 is turning out to be a comeback for Versace after several years that were dominated by debt and restructuring. Obama finalizes plan for Afghan cuts

President Barack Obama made his final decision yesterday on the scale and pace of a U.S. troop drawdown in Afghanistan and will announce his plan in a primetime speech to Americans today.

Obama is expected to present a blueprint for bringing home thousands of troops in the initial phase starting in July and also unveil a broader withdrawal strategy for the remainder of the 30,000 extra "surge" troops he ordered deployed in late 2009, a U.S. official said.

The president's address from the White House, scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT, comes amid growing pressure from Congress and the U.S. public for an end to the costly, 10-year-old war.

Obama has sought to balance arguments from military leaders pressing for a slow drawdown and White House advisers advocating a more rapid pullout as he faces a 2012 reelection campaign.

Obama's decision comes at a critical juncture as lawmakers, looking to slash federal spending, are anxious to curtail the costly U.S. military intervention. REUTERS

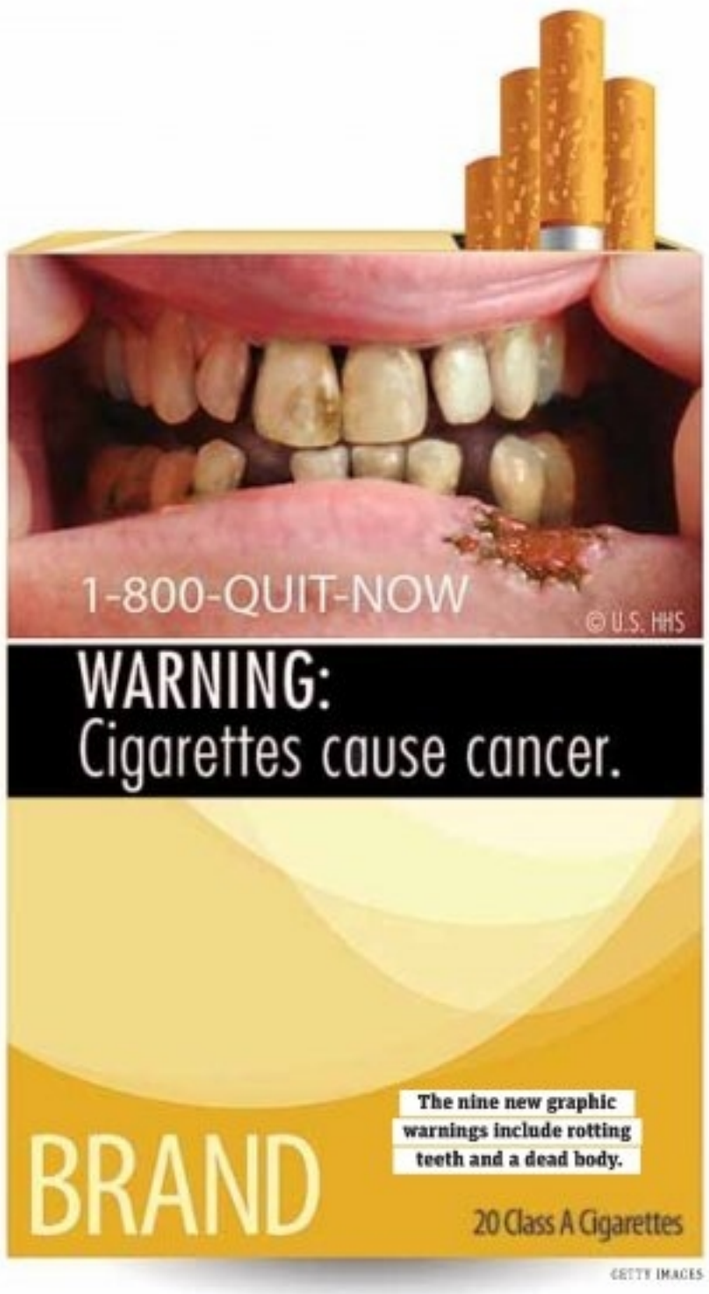
Graphic labels for tobacco released

Dead body, diseased lungs among stark images ◐ Required on cigarette packs and ads by Sept. 2012 ◐ Sebelius aims to keep kids from smoking



GETTY IMAGES

Dead bodies, diseased lungs and rotting teeth were among the among the graphic images for revamped tobacco labels — unveiled yesterday by health officials who hope the warnings will help smokers quit.

The new labels must be on cigarette packages and tobacco advertisements no later than September 2012, as part of a law that put the multibillion-dollar tobacco industry under the control of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

They represent the first change in U.S. cigarette warnings in 25 years.

"With these warnings, every person who picks up a pack of cigarettes is going to know exactly what risks they are taking," Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius told reporters at the White House.

The new labels may disturb some, including one with a photograph of a man smoking a cigarette through a hole in his throat, and one showing a mouth with discolored teeth and an ulcerated lip.

Other images stress the dangers of secondhand smoke to children and show tobacco's causal link to lung disease, cancer, strokes, heart disease and death.

Sebelius said the goal was to stop children and teenagers from starting to smoke and to give nicotine-addicted adults an added incentive to quit, helping push down U.S. smoking levels that have been stubbornly stagnant in recent years.

"We want kids to understand that smoking is gross not cool and there is really nothing pretty about having mouth cancer or making your baby sick if you smoke," she said. REUTERS

221K

More than 221,000 Americans will be diagnosed with lung cancer in 2011, accounting for about 14 percent of all U.S. cancer cases, according to the American Cancer Society. Nearly 157,000 men and women are expected to die from lung cancer this year in the United States.

Donation jump for candidate

WASHINGTON. Presidential hopeful Michele Bachmann saw a jump in political donations in May, aided in large part by small contributions as she revs up her fundraising machine for the 2012 Republican nomination.

Bachmann, a conservative Tea Party favorite in the House of Representatives, saw one of her two political committees — MichelePAC — bring in about $214,000 in May, compared with $173,000 for April, according to filings with the Federal Election Commission posted on Monday. REUTERS

That'll get their attention

The 2009 Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act called for cigarette packages to include warning statements in large type covering half of the front and back of each package and graphic images showing the health dangers of smoking.

The anti-smoking group Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids said the images are a dramatic change from today's printed warnings that simply list potential health problems from smoking. REUTERS

This Saturday marks the two-year anniversary of the death of Michael Jackson. To commemorate (or take advantage of, depending on your view) this sad date, his sister, La Toya Jackson, released a new memoir, "Starting Over," in which she claims to unveil the behind-the-scenes dealings she believes led to Michael's death. She also discloses more about the abuse she suffered while growing up in the famous Jackson family.

"I have people come up to me, telling me their stories, and I would tell them that I understand. They would then cry and I would hug them and hold them. That was when I realized that there are more people out there being abused than we think, and I need to speak up for them, putting their stories out there and letting people know about the abuse," she told Metro at her book party on Monday night in New York City. "And that was exactly what I did."

La Toya Jackson on Monday

Despite the book's heavy themes, Jackson's party was a lively affair, with guests sipping champagne and nibbling on hors d'oeuvres. Jackson, who spent most of the time in a corner with various friends, got up occasionally to take photos with fans, including Nikki M. James, star of "The Book Of Mormon," who stopped by for a pic.

As for Saturday, she wouldn't disclose how she is going to mark her brother's passing. "I do," she answered when asked if she had any idea of what she is planning, "but it will be very private."

Black Eyed Peas singer Fergie was spotted leaving her hotel yesterday in Paris. That luggage cart? It's filled with her Louis Vuitton bags and boxes. Lucky girl.

Smart man, that Hef

It appears Hugh Hefner knows what's valuable in life. Although he's letting ex-fiancee Crystal Harris hold onto the $90,000 engagement ring as well as the Bentley he'd given her, he's going to hold onto their dog, Charlie, per Radar Online. Good thing — you know she'd try to pawn that dog within the week.

The feed ...

▶ Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Talking points

The couple who drinks coffee together ...

Leonardo DiCaprio and Blake Lively are still enjoying each other's company, despite rumors the new couple had already split up. DiCaprio and Lively hit a private resort in the coastal town of Carmel, Calif., though they did venture out into town for some shopping and coffee. "Blake ordered two cappuccinos," a source told People. "One with whipped cream, and one without. But when she learned that the whipped cream was homemade, she added it to the second drink." According to the source, DiCaprio waited outside with his baseball cap pulled down low while she ordered.

Lohan is actually working!

House arrest has been very good for Lindsay Lohan, as the troubled actress has not only stayed out of trouble but has also gotten some work. Lohan booked and filmed a TV commercial for Internet auction site Beezid.com, filming the spot at the Venice, Calif., house she's not allowed to leave, according to TMZ. The company reportedly offered Lohan $25,000 initially, which she turned down. The final amount Lohan agreed to is not known, but sources say she was also given $10,000 in credit to use on the site.

Sara MacDonald and Noel Gallagher

Well, we know who wasn't the best man

Former Oasis frontman Noel Gallagher married longtime girlfriend Sara MacDonald over the weekend in England, according to E! Online, with Russell Brand serving as best man. The wedding wasn't a family affair, though — Noel's brother and former bandmate, Liam Gallagher, skipped the event, as the pair reportedly haven't spoken since their 2009 split. "He goes on about how he wasn't invited to my wedding," Noel told the Chicago Sun-Times recently. "Get over it, mate. I've not been invited to his wedding."

On her next project

How do you plan to balance theater work and film work going forward?

I doubt very much that I'll do many more movies. I mean, I can be surprised, but I really don't want to just do small, insignificant, uninteresting roles. There's no point. I don't want to play an old lady who has one foot in the grave, because I don't. And I think I represent a tremendous number of women of my age who still have a very busy and fulfilling life.

Angela Lansbury is keeping up the act

The 85-year-old actress is as busy as ever, appearing in 'Mr. Popper's Penguins' Why she won't play 'an old lady who has one foot in the grave'

While stage and screen legend Angela Lansbury turned 85 last autumn, you wouldn't know it by speaking with her. Still active on Broadway, in last year's revival of "A Little Night Music," the celebrated actress returns to movies with "Mr. Popper's Penguins," a project she admits she mainly signed onto for the chance to work opposite Jim Carrey. The outspoken Lansbury shares her thoughts with Metro about why the theater is better than movies — and she has a few choice words for today's film editors.

This is your first film appearance since 2005. What was it about this role that made you want to take it on?

She's a woman who really never left the 1940s. She dresses in the style of the '40s, and she's an anachronism in today's world — and that made her interesting from my point of view as an actress. Also, the other huge element was the fact that Jim Carrey was going to play the main role. I have a tremendous regard for him as an artist, as an actor and as a comedian.

Did you have any expectations about working with him?

Yes, certainly. I wasn't sure what I was going to come up against. We had some funny stuff. You never see all the funny stuff that we shot because it's always axed out. I, as the actress, will be sitting there in the projection room looking at it and say, "But what happened to such and such?" And this is what's so awful about movies. They can tailor your performance in the editing room, and suddenly the whole of what you did is not evident.

I suppose you never really get used to that.

No, but it didn't used to be that bad. These days, editing makes the movie, whereas before, the director made the movie. The way he set up a scene, how he shot it with a cameraman, that was the movie that you saw. Sure, he worked very closely with an editor, and they fine-tuned everything. But his work as an auteur was what really presented the piece to the public.

Don't fear the Pusha

If you know Pusha T only from his work on Kanye West's latest album, there's a lot to learn
Clipse rapper on why he likes to keep his freestyle free Kanye an 'unselfish' collaborator

Terrence Thornton is something like a walking paradox. Known better as Pusha T, he's a heralded hip-hop lyricist who you can catch singing the praises of the pariah of rap purists, Soulja Boy. He's a platinum hit-maker who's committed to feeding the streets and the Internet new freestyles. And in the strangest turn of events, the veteran Grammy-nominated MC is now getting a newcomer's acclaim after his work on Kanye West's latest album, "My Beautiful Dark Twisted Fantasy." Having gained respect for the literate drug game-inspired anthems of The Clipse, his group with brother Malice, Pusha is set for the solo spotlight.

While on the verge of releasing one of the more anticipated solo debuts in hip-hop (on West's G.O.O.D. Music imprint), he decided to appease his fans with the commercial release of his heralded mixtape "Fear Of God" on Decon Records.

Even with numerous albums, Pusha T has made it a point to create mixtapes, a process which he calls "the foundation of hip-hop." He says that as an artist, that's where the talk begins.

"The mixtape is the core," he says. "There's a certain level of artistry that we put into them. For me, it's everything. Mixtapes for me were about competition. For me, there was nothing like hearing Jay-Z on a DJ Clue tape over 'The Symphony.'"

So much of mixtapes depends on collaboration. How did Pusha T find the experience of collaborating with Kanye West? "People are so wrong that it's hilarious. He's so unselfish," says Pusha. "He'd just play records and let me pick whatever I wanted to be on. Like, 'This could be the biggest record of the year and you're just letting me do what I want?' People just don't get him. If standing up for what you believe in and demanding what you want is an egomaniac then a lot of people are guilty of that."

Perfect hair for your big day

Getting your hair to look its best on your wedding day is crucial. You want a style that's chic and yet sturdy enough to withstand, say, an unexpected gust of wind or your first dance. Yes, it's possible. Kate Middleton's hair guru, Richard Ward, explains.

ROMINA MCGUINNESS

GETTY IMAGES/THINKSTOCK IMAGES

Big rollers will help you get ready for the big day.

▶ Try a demi chignon

"The up-down demi chignon really is the best of both worlds," Ward says. "Wear it all the way down and your hair will be all over your face. But wear it all the way up and you look too strict. [The demi chignon] is a timeless look that you can pull off at the ceremony and the party."

▶ Not everyone has a tiara

Alternate hair accoutrements Ward loves are flowers. "They're the ultimate accessory," he assures. "Make a halo using lily of the valley buds. If you want to jazz this up at night just swap the flowers for some diamante studs, as seen on Pippa [Middleton]."

▶ Keep curls lovely and loose

"No matter how well curls have been done they will eventually drop. For long lasting, lovely, loose curls, use big rollers set into wet hair. This will last as your hair dries into the shape," he explains. "The worst thing to do is use tight, heavy tongs or heating rollers, as neither will last."

Pick a good hair spray

"On the day, allow for at least 90 minutes to get your hair done," he says. "An easy trap to fall into is to add on loads of hair spray to make sure that your hair stays in place, but what you should be doing is lightly applying a fine spray. Assign a friend to help you freshen your hair at night, whether it's blow drying or straightening."

Take control: Get an HIV test

National HIV Testing Day is June 27 'Early testing means people with HIV can live healthy lives,' expert says What to expect when going in

MORE METRO WELLBEING: WWW.METRO.US/WELLBEING

AIDS was once the small word that struck big fear, but it's no longer the scaremongering disease it was when it first went public in the 1980s, when a pandemic of biblical proportions was feared.

"The perception of it as a chronic disease has changed," says Sharen Duke, CEO of AIDS Service Center NYC. "There have been medical advances in treating it, but the reality is that there still is no cure. Prevention is our best weapon for individual and community health."

Prevention includes testing people for HIV, the virus that results in AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome), which, along with safe sex education, is still the only way to stem the disease. National HIV Testing Day, June 27, aims to spread the message that HIV/AIDS is alive and still making people unwell. Early testing is part of secondary prevention.

▶ Getting an HIV test isn't even this hard anymore.

"It's important to let people know that early testing means people with HIV can live healthy lives," Duke suggests. "It also helps prevent spreading the disease through our communities. We need to fight against complacency."

What happens at an HIV test?

Getting tested is simple. Like many centers around the country, ASC uses OraQuick Advance Rapid HIV-1/2 Antibody test, which is a simple mouth swab to see if HIV antibodies are present — that means no needles and no blood work (although blood tests and urine tests are still available for those who prefer them). With rapid testing, results are available in about 20 minutes. At many testing sites, testing is free, completely confidential and includes a pre- and post-test counseling session. To find a testing center near you, visit www.hivtest.org.

Quitting smoking and weight gain

Study subjects: Mice
Location of study: U.S.

Results: New research funded by the National Institute on Drug Abuse found "a brain mechanism that could be targeted for new medications designed to help people quit smoking without gaining weight." The National Institutes of Health website says, "Researchers found that a nicotine-like drug, cytisine, specifically activated nicotinic receptors in the hypothalamus — a brain center that controls feeding."

Significance: "Previous research shows that the average weight gain after smoking is less than 10 pounds, but fear of weight gain can discourage some people who would like to quit," says the NIDA.

RE: Aguilera's chunky salary

A woman gets paid more than her male colleagues, and Matthew Jordan takes a shot at her weight. Good job, Matt! What sophisticated humor, you chauvinist pig.

D. SENSALE, VIA E-MAIL

Even if Gaga wrote full-time

Cheerleading for the enactment of same sex marriage belongs on the opinion pages, not in your news stories. Being a short-form newspaper, you should not truncate your editorial standards. It's one thing to have Lady Gaga as a guest editor, it's quite another to pursue her one-issue advocacy day after day. Metro has yet to balance its pro-same-sex marriage bias with a reasonable depiction of the pro-traditional marriage position, in either artwork or reporting.

MICHAEL BENJAMIN, VIA E-MAIL

On the road to Gomorrah?

Homosexuals cannot procreate without the intercession of heterosexual benefits. Therefore they will never be biologically equal. You may legislate that the sky is pink, but it is in fact blue. New York City's Bloomberg will leave the legacy of a vote taken in the final days of Gomorrah and the city will be left looking like the freak show that is San Francisco.

DAVID DIBELLO, VIA E-MAIL

When I heard the news about Ryan Dunn's passing, I felt so sad that young lives like his had to end so quickly and violently. I feel for him and for the family and friends he left behind.

Something like tolerance

Let the gays have a method by which their relationships are recognized by the legal system. Just keep the relationship between a man and woman as the mainstream relationship. I know no culture that views same-sex relationships as the dominate or preferred institution.

Fair deal?

Hey NFL, let's make a deal!

NFL players would receive 48 percent of all revenue and their share would never drop below 46.5 under a proposed CBA, according to ESPN.

In the previous agreement, players got 60 percent of total revenue — but that didn't include a $1 billion expense credit that went to the owners.

NBA DRAFT PREVIEW

Sixers looking for diamond in the rough

Sixers president won't reveal draft strategy ◗ Weak field leading teams to invest in role players ◗ Could Morris be pick? ◗ Iguodala rumors swirl

The Sixers have a lot on their plate heading into tomorrow's NBA draft.

Andre Iguodala trade rumors continue to swirl, the lockout is imminent, a new ownership group is about to take over — and they also have to figure out who the heck to take at No. 16 overall.

Exactly how all these ingredients will mix together provides plenty of intrigue despite the weak draft class.

"We feel in this draft there aren't a lot of players who I think might be real stars, but there are a lot of role, rotation-type players. It's deep in that. Where we are, that's what we're looking for," president Rod Thorn said yesterday.

But what role?

The Sixers are obviously in dire need of a big man. They also need a shooter, and maybe a swingman if Iguodala ends up being dealt. Thorn added that he'd be willing to take a European player, even if that guy was planning on staying overseas for another year or two.

In other words, everyone is in play.

▶ Markieff Morris isn't as highly touted as his twin, Marcus, but is a solid fit for the Sixers.

Iguodala trade talk heats up

Sixers president Rod Thorn conceded that there have been trade conversations regarding Andre Iguodala.

Thorn said that most — but not all — of the conversations have been initiated by other teams. The most persistent rumors have linked Iguodala to the Warriors (for Monta Ellis) and the Clippers (for Chris Kaman). Although no trade is imminent right now, that can all change quickly on draft night.

If Iguodala isn't dealt by the July 1 lockout, it might not happen at all. Thorn said he spoke to Iguodala about three weeks ago.

"He's always said that he would like to stay. He's never said that he would like to be traded, to me," Thorn said.

ADAM LEVITAN

Targets for Sixers

Nikola Vucevic, G, USC
Why? The biggest man in the draft has a 7-foot-4 wingspan combined with soft touch. Could push Spencer Hawes for starting center job right away.

Jordan Hamilton, SF, Texas
Why? Sixers' brass has been adamant about adding a shooter-scorer. And if Andre Iguodala is traded, they'll need a swingman that can fill it up.

Donatas Motiejunas, PF, Lithuania
Why? "Stretch fours" are all the rage in the NBA. Motiejunas is a true 7-footer that has NBA 3-point range right now.

Kenneth Faried, PF, Morehead St.
Why? Faried has twice canceled workouts with the Sixers because he thinks he'll go in the lottery. If he slips, the Sixers would be wise to grab best pure rebounder.

Markieff Morris, PF/C, Kansas
Why? He's not as talented as Marcus, but can block shots and board. Even if the Philly native doesn't project as a starter, he'll add toughness.

▶ John Isner barely broke a sweat this year.

Short rematch at Wimby

Isner needs just 2:03 to dispatch Mahut this year ◐ That's about nine hours less than their match in 2010 ◐ No living up to that epic contest

After John Isner finished off Nicolas Mahut at Wimbledon yesterday, he lifted his head as he trudged through the autograph-seekers.

"Where were you?" Isner asked Mohamed Lahyani, the chair umpire at last year's match between the two.

Lahyani's absence was far from the only difference between Isner-Mahut in 2010 and 2011.

Last year, the pair played the longest tennis match ever, an 11-hour epic that took place over three days.

This time around, Isner won, 7-6, 6-2, 7-6, in a low-key, early round contest.

The first game of the match lasted less than a minute. Although there were two tiebreaks, the clash never threatened to live up to the patience-trying 6-4, 3-6, 6-7 (7-9), 7-6 (7-3), 70-68 affair of a year ago. METRO/REUTERS

Emotional victory for Williams

Serena Williams has never been one to bottle up her emotions, so why start now?

The four-time Wimbledon champion burst into tears after serving her 13th ace and beating Aravane Rezai in three sets yesterday at Wimbledon.

It was her first Grand Slam match since taking a year off due to health problems.

"I usually don't cry, but it's just been so hard," Williams said. METRO

Polanco still leads All-Star fan voting

▶ Polanco

Third baseman lock to start for NL But will he be the only Phillie? Voting ends June 30, game July 12

Placido Polanco has been in a mini-slump at the plate in recent days.

No worry. He's still poised to be the starting third baseman when the National League All-Star roster is released on July 3. Polanco, who is batting .150 in his last 11 games, holds a sizeable lead (with close to 2.6 million fan votes) over Atlanta's Chipper Jones.

POST YOUR COMMENTS: WWW.METRO.US

Polanco was back in the Phillies' starting lineup last night after Charlie Manuel rested him Sunday due to "aches and pains."

But Polanco may be the only Phillie on that starting roster. The next closest guy is Chase Utley (1.8 million votes) and he is third among second baseman. Jimmy Rollins is third among shortstops.

The All-Star Game is set for July 12 in Phoenix and will be televised nationally. Voting closes June 30 at 11:59 p.m. METRO

Riley sticking with Spoelstra

▶ Riley

The Miami Heat president told the media yesterday that Erik Spoelstra will remain the team's coach next season. Many had speculated that Riley would take over after the Heat fell in the NBA Finals, but the 66-year-old quickly shot down those rumors.

"It doesn't mean that I don't have the fire," Riley told reporters. "But we've got a great young coach here, and I want to support him. And hopefully, he can grow like I did. We'll bring Erik back, definitely."

Riley said he met with LeBron James and urged the two-time MVP to critique his performance. But the former coach also said that it was "wrong to lay it [the blame] all on him."

METRO

50 Average wins per season in Riley's 24 seasons as an NBA head coach. His win percentage is at .636.

Research Sleep Study

Teenagers between the ages of 12 and 16 are needed for a study that will help us better understand sleep in adolescents. Your child does not need to have sleep problems to be included in this study. Teenagers of average weight and overweight teenagers can be included.

The study involves two nights in the sleep lab, MRI and a breathing test. During this study, nothing will hurt your child and no needles will be used. A parent must stay with the child overnight.

We offer reimbursement for expenses.

Pa.'s first LEED Platinum row home

Last week, the U.S. Green Building Council awarded Platinum certification in Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) to Shannon Price Slusher for work done on his Fairmount row home located on North 27th Street.

Slusher's updates include two vegetative green roofs, solar panels that provide nearly half the home's electricity, and a closed-loop grey water system that saves more than five thousand gallons of water per year.

Mod living at The Modules at

▶ The Modules at TempleTown (1417 N. 15th St.) is the first green apartment building in the area.

New apartment complex has an unusual, innovative construction to go along with its high-tech offerings

Need maintenance to fix your leaky faucet? There's an app for that.

At The Modules at TempleTown, the first green apartment building in the Temple University area, residents can use a smartphone to submit work orders, post classifieds, check out community calendars and view live feeds from security cameras. Those looking to move into the building, which is all two- and three-bedroom apartments, can connect with potential roommates through the Modules' Facebook page.

That's all par for the course at one of the most modern buildings around, says Jonathan Weiss, head of Equinox Management and Construction and of TempleTown Realty, the companies that built and manage the Modules.

All the extras

Two-bedroom apartments rent for $1,300 a month. Got two friends? The three-bedrooms are $1,950. Furnished apartments are also available for an additional cost.

The building features:
- Green roof and furnished roof deck
- Free FiOs internet
- Energy-efficient appliances
- Parking garage
- Bike garage with maintenance equipment

The Pennsylvania chapter of the American Institute of Architects recently gave the Modules an Architectural Excellence Award in Innovation, in part because of the building's unusual construction: It's modular, which means the apartments were built in a factory, shipped to Philly, and then stacked on top of each other on-site. "It's an innovative, time-efficient and resource-efficient building process," Weiss says.

The apartments are part of Temple's transition from a commuter school to a residential one, with the number of students living on or near campus increasing from 2,000 or 3,000 up to 14,000 in the last 10 years, according to Weiss.

For rising senior Stuart Case, a Modules resident, that proximity was the Practice safe salvaging

Is that chair you spotted on the curb safe to take home? Married design duo Wary and Meyers share their secrets for street shopping

For those short on cash, grabbing a curbside cast-off is a viable solution to redecorating. However, thanks in large part to the bed bug epidemic, this form of recycling can lead to expensive risks. Husband and wife design team Linda Wary and John Meyers (www.warymeyers.com) are experts in all things vintage. Their book, "Tossed & Found: Unconventional Design from Cast-Offs" is all about repurposing found objects. They give us tips.

JACQUELINE COLETTE PROSPER

It's a treasure hunt

When it comes to salvaging: "Sometimes you can find one-of-a-kind items that you're never going to find anywhere else, like a 5-panel wood door or [an art deco] piece of brass," Meyers affirms.

Sniff test

Before it's dealt with at home, smell it! "Cigarette and [urine] odors never come out," Meyers warns. A musty smell on an end table might clear out if it's left out in the sunlight for a day or two. "But it depends on the severity of the smell," Wary adds. "I once left an old jacket out for an entire summer!"

Determine if it's cost-effective to pick it up

"Can you realistically clean it up if it's a little dirty? Or if it's a lamp, are you going to be able to rewire it if it doesn't work?" Meyers says.

"If it seems impossible to fix, re-donate to the curb."

Safe bets

Glass vases or plastic storage boxes are usually reliably clean finds. "If it looks like it's in good shape, with no strange smells, don't worry about cleaning it before bringing it home," Wary says.

Soap and water

If you spot a dusty dresser or lamp, gently wipe off grime with a soapy sponge. "A harsh chemical could damage old finishes, so best to start with a mild cleanser," she says.

Avoid upholstery

Bed bugs hide in almost any material, especially soft textiles. Never bring bed frames, mattresses, box springs or upholstered furniture into your home, warns the duo. Also: "Fabric on an upholstered chair can age and develop mold," says Wary, "and a rusty spring inside a chair can break or pop out — and you don't want to sit on that." (Deep wounds are most susceptible to tetanus infection — see your doctor if pricked!)
